Empresaria

Empresaria is a quoted specialist staffing group made up of over 20 brands and 30 companies in 12 countries. Each brand has a specific market sector focus which include financial services, supply chain, the public sector and the property services and construction industry. Empresaria is one of the fastest growing recruitment groups in the UK with turnover increasing each year from £4m in 1999 to over £54m in 2005.

Underpinning its success is the philosophy of management equity, with the directors and consultants in each company owning a large part of the shares and each company operating autonomously within a decentralised group structure.

Judd Farris Property Recruitment

Imaginative advertising campaigns illustrate Judd Farris' stated approach of "unique resourcing for unique requirements". And when it comes to taking a global approach to recruitment, Judd Farris has proven its resourcefulness across the continents by meeting unique requirements for clients and candidates alike.

For example, a particular geographic market was biased towards hiring only candidates with current local experience and networks. A candidate relocating into that market, who had gained strong experience elsewhere, received tutoring from the local Judd Farris office about the market. Following interviews arranged by Judd Farris with seven different companies, the candidate was hired to fill a position that had gone unfilled for three months. Since the candidate's relocation, Judd Farris has helped her find a permanent home, and the company has taken her to property industry events and local community meetings to establish her professional and social networks.

The hiring of this candidate has now set a strong precedent for success for other professionals in the property field who relocate into that market.

Clients' testimonies:

"They're very knowledgeable, and most of the candidates they send up, we end up recruiting"

"Working with Judd Farris was refreshing."
